

THE EAGLE

*Summit Academy
THS News Paper*

EDITOR IN CHIEF:
PRESTON KING

Cincinnati museums are offering free admission this Saturday

By Donyae White

More than a dozen Cincinnati areas museums are offering free admission on Saturday. It's a single-day event where participating museums and cultural institutions across the country give free entry to anyone that has a museum day ticket. The website explained, "Participants are allowed one ticket per download per email." The ticket can get up to two people inside for free. Over a dozen museums are offering free admission on Saturday. The museums that you can go to for free include Covington's Behringer-Crawford Museum, the Cincinnati Reds Hall of Fame and Museum and the Harriet

Beecher Stowe House, etc..

What Happened to The Kids of Dent Public School?
By Dianna Fields

The Dent Schoolhouse
In 1894 the Dent Public School was open, but in 1942 several students, known for their "disruption in the classroom", mysteriously vanished. They were reported last seen at Dent Public. Police began an investigation, but then came to a conclusion that all the students must be "runaways." Three years later four more students go missing. Rumors were spreading saying that the school had something to do with the students disappearing. Students then started to complain about a foul odor coming from the basement of the school. When asked about it, the janitor said it's just the pipes clogged. In October of 1955, more than seven students vanished without a trace. The local kids complained about a smell that was coming from the basement and that it was actually causing some children to pass out. Community members of Dent rallied together and stormed up to the Dent Public School. The angry mob busted the large doors of the school down and proceeded to go into the basement of the school. The local rioters were shocked at the horrific sight that was strung throughout the janitor's basement, he was the one kidnapping the students.. Decaying bodies of children hanging throughout the basement. To this day it is said that those decaying bodies of the missing students haunt the Dent Schoolhouse.

Saudi oil attacks:
US says intelligence
shows Iran involved
By Vivian Roper

The incident has cut global oil supplies by 5% and prices have soared. Iran denies involvement in Saturday's air attacks, which were claimed by Iran-aligned Houthi rebels in Yemen.

Unnamed US officials have been speaking to the New York Times, ABC and Reuters.

One official said there were 19 points of impact on the targets and the attacks had come from a west-north-west direction - not Houthi-controlled territory in Yemen, which lies to the south-west of the Saudi oil facilities.

Area 51
By Khalil Goines

Have you heard of area 51? That there may be aliens or ufos and conspiracies. Well for some reason, some guy named Matty Roberts made a joke called "Storm Area 51: They cant stop all of us ". At first it was a joke but some people actually took this seriously. Can you believe how much stuff people would do to see aliens? It was supposed to happen sometime in September. There's some information out there we know, but nothing about the government secretly hiding aliens from us for 70 years straight. It's bizarre to me, but it can also be true that aliens exist but that's my opinion if you think differently tell us.

Chuck E. Cheese
By Hailey Boling

The conspiracy theory on whether or not Chuck E. Cheese recycles their pizza has now come to a conclusion that they do not recycle their pizza. "I noticed this when I was like 8 or something." says the internet star, Shane Dawson, who started this whole conspiracy theory. "Wait a minute, why are all the pieces different?" Different Chuck E. Cheeses have reached out and said that Shane's conspiracy is in fact false. A Chuck E. Cheese company tweeted, "We prep the dough daily for our ordered pizzas, which means their not all perfectly round, but still are great tasting." What do you think? Are they using other customers leftover pizza?

NFL Scores
By Jordan
Holloway

Patriots 2-0

Bills 2-0

Jets 0-1

Dolphins 0-2

Chiefs 2-0

Raiders 1-1

Chargers 1-1

Broncos 0-2

Ravens 2-0

Browns 0-1

Bengals 0-2

Steelers 0-2

Colts 1-1

Texans 1-1

Titan 1-1

Jaguars 0-2

Cowboy 2-0

Eagles 1-1

Giants 0-2

Redskins 0-2

Rams 2-0